CHARLOTTE HELEN ABBOTT

The KEMP FAMILY
of Andover

The ANDOVER branch of this family seems to come down from Edward Kemp and his wife Ann, who were in Dedham, 1639; in Wenham, 1651 and from there to Chelmsford with the other settlers in 1658. Their daughter married Samuel (1) Foster, who was originally from Bedham.

Samuel Kemp, now said to have been the son of Edward, above, is mentioned in Groton, a town just west of Chelmsford. Groton notes show that Samuel was there in a garrison with Enoch Lawrence, in the northern part of the town as late as 1691. They were very likely driven in by Indians in 1696.

According to Hazen, Samuel Kemp was in Billerica, 1659, and after a stop in Andover, moved to Groton. Hazen gives his marriage to Sarah Foster, May 23, 1662. Their children were :-

Gamble says, quoting American Family Antiquary, vol.7-
"Francis and Tom Kendall, brothers, born in England, came to Mass. Colony before 1640. Francis settled in Woburn, then called Charles-town Village. Tom went to Lynn in the Lynn Village of Reading, and there, in 1639, married Rebecca. He moved to Reading about 1653. Tom was a deacon, and was very pious." ( So was my uncle Tom Kendall. He sold liquor in his supply store and upset aunt Kendall's nerves so she had to go to an asylum.) Tom died July 22, 1681; Rebecca died July 17, 1703 at 85. Rebecca had 10 children; 175 grand children and great grand-children.

Francis Kendall married Mary Tidd, Dec. 24, 1644. He was a Selectman for many years and was very influential. He died 1708; Mary died 1705. They had four sons and five daughters.

The Kendall line may be traced back to 1410. All members have an extra finger or toe as a birth mark.

From FARM AND NEIGHBORHOOD CEMETERIES

of ANDOVER AND NORTH ANDOVER, MASS. by Leonora W. McQuesten.

"The Moses Kimball Farm Cemetery.

Just beyond the Paul Averill farm on Forest St., in the Kimball district of North Andover, Mass., is located the farm which was formerly owned by Mr. Moses Kimball, a Revolutionary soldier, who marched from Andover to Cambridge, April 19, 1775, as a member of Capt. Joshua Holt's Company. This farm is now owned by Mr. Geo Albers of Lawrence, Mass., who occupies it during the summer months.

We find on this farm another family cemetery which contains only two real gravestones. These stones mark the graves of Moses Kimball's grand-daughter and her husband. It is said that Moses Kimball, the Revolutionary soldier, is buried here, and as he lived and died on this farm at over 90 years of age, in 1822, it is no doubt very true.

We do not find a record of his grand daughter's death or her husband's death in the Andover Vital Records published in 1912.

A few years more and this cemetery as far as outward appearance shows, will fail to exist.

side of Pine Hill, East of Thomas Phelps' home, to make recompense in full for a town way laid through his own land in part, and part through

Thos. Abbott's land, -lying between Thos. Abbott and home of Moses Ingalls, late of Andover, dec., across the Sawmill Brook towards the Great Pond;
bds. of new lot are on Thos. Abbott, Zeb Chandler and Dr. Abbott, by a way, Thos. Phelps and Thos. Abbott( evidently 2 Thos. Abbotts). The road laid out by Kittredge was on the place he inherited from Thos. Abbott's heirs, of North Parish- the road where the Kittredge manse still stands, near the old graveyard. Probably the one laid to the sawmill, is that which leads by a turn to the old main road. When he received damages, he had to take land in West Andover on the border of Phelps- and a Thos. Abbott of our line who lived over here, was on the bds.

The original Kittredge home at No. Andover <sup>C</sup>enter stood North of the grant site of Thos. Abbott. Dr. John (4) a fine surgeon, died in 1776.
His son, Thomas, built the house that now stands, in 1784, when his son, Joseph(6), was a year old. )

The KNEELAND FAMILY
of ANDOVER

Early mention of a Kneeland is made in Andover in 1657, in the will of Alexander Simpson, who gave to Mary Kneeland, his nurse, a legacy of 4 £.

John Kneeland was a member of the Scotch Charitable Society, 1657.

Sarah Kneelad, who married Samuel Abbott of Andover, was widow of Bartholomew Kneeland of Charlestown or Boston, and came to Andover, according to South Church Manual, in 1791, from the Brattle St., Church in Boston. He d. in 1812, age 80. Sarah died Feb. 12, 1816 at 89.

Sally Kneeland, daughter of widow Sarah, married Timothy Ames of Peterboro, N.H., son of Capt. Ben Ames.

John Kneeland, son of widow Sarah, married 1st, Rebecca Austin, who joined South Church, 1801; she d. 1819. His second wife was Priscilla Abbott, of the George Washington visit fame, daughter of Isaac Abbott, the tavern keeper on Elm street, whom he married on June 6, 1820. She was born on June 1, 1770; died Feb. 17, 1830. John d. 1831.

Abigail Kneeland, a second daughter of widow Sarah, married Caleb Richardson; joined South Church, 1795; d. 1845 at 75. Caleb went to West Parish Church.

. John Kneeland had no children by Priscilla. His son, Samuel, probably never married. His daughter married a Mr. Hall, and their daughter, married Dr. Gould of Reading.

John Kneeland took interest in school and public affairs. He was a lawyer in Andover, and was the builder of the so-called "Rose Cottage" at the corner of Chestnut and Central streets, in 1796. It is said that he expected to inherit the estate of Samuel Abbott, but his first marriage displeased his step-father and he donated his money to Andover Seminary.

The KNEELAND FAMILY

John Kneeland was b., presumably in Boston, Oct. 14, 1748. He was a merchant here, and member of the Mass. House., 1807; 1812; 1816-7; 1819. He died here, Sept. 4, 1831.

( Although C.H.A. records John as son of Bartholomew Kneeland, I glean, from the record of members in the Constitutional Convention that John Kneeland was the son of John Kneeland and w. Sarah Mulberry, who were married in Boston, Jan.14, 1747.) Lam.

LANE FAMILY

Of ANDOVER

WILLARD LANE of Andover and Polly Marshall of Nottingham, West, were married in Pelham, Fe . 4, 1802.

John Lane, servant of the Rev. Eli Forbes, chaplain to John Fendleton's Co., General T. Ruggles' Rgt., in the Crown Point Exped. from March to December. (Was this John Lane, the son of John Lane and Hannah Abbott of Andover ? )

Forbes took Lane to Fort Edward . There is something about Lake
George and prayer twice a day, and attendance on the sick criminals, and Sabbath preaching. John and his parson trudged between stations of several camps- often 15 miles to the hospital.

Parson Forbes and another minister had charge of 400 invalids near the end of the campaign, and were ordered to march to Albany with them. The lieutenants compelled them to advance money from their own pockets, and do the hardest kind of nursing for the poor distressed men/<sup>who</sup> had been suffering terribly, as no hospital stores were available.

John Lane signed the petition for return of funds, 1753, writing in the name of his wife, Abigail Jones Lane.

LEE FAMILY

NOTES :_

JOHN LEE married Hannah Osgood in Andover. She joined South Church 1805; died before 1812. John joined the church in 1806, in his old age; He died, age 76, March 1812.

David Lee married Debora Ingalls . Her second husband was Peter Young. They joined the church, July 1824. Peter died 1828, at 36. She was probably the widowed mother of Hannah Young, who married first a Simpson; 2nd., Wm. Stickney. Old portraits owned by the Howards, neighbors to Hannah Simpson were given to them by Wm. Stickney when they sold out poor Hannah's stuff. They were portraits of Mrs. Young's husband's parents, -they thought, -of England. Peter Young was said to be an English sailor. Everyone is dead now and I can't tell whether Hannah Simpson was the daughter of a Lee or of a Young.

I feel sure that John Lee owned the Hobart Clark place at one time. Caroline Wild here, who joined the Church, 1815, was on the place one while, I am told.

In 1779, Edward Wild sold to a Lee , possible JOHN Lee. Was the place built by Dr. Nehemiah Abbott before he went to Lexington, to be handy to both South and North parishes ?

Sudbury, Mass.
E.R. Lemon, Landlord.

My dear Miss Abbott:-

First, to correct a genealogist, my name is not Frank, but my full name is Edward Rivers Lemon. I was named for a cousin of my father's, Edward Rivers, of So. Carolina.

My grandfather, Ezra Holt, married Elizabeth Gage Wardwell. The old Wardwell homestead was on what we called the "back road" or No. Andover Road. My grandfather, Ezra Holt, was born on Salem St. near the base of Prospect Hill, a short distance from a pond once called Pine Hole, and said to be bottomless. His father, Timothy Holt, married Ede Macentire, and went up to Temple, N.H., where now may be seen the slate slabs erected by Ezra Holt, which mark both their graves. (I have been there twice.)

On the death of Timothy Holt, my grandfather Ezra Holt went to Temple, and took his family to live with his widowed mother. He remained there some fourteen years, until the death of his mother, Ede Macintire. During this time he ran his father's farm, and my mother, a twin sister Sarah, ( Mrs. Geo. Valpey) uncle Warren and Horace were born in Temple, N.H.

He then came back to Andover. My mother was between 12 -13 years old. He bought the old Blunt farm. The old bar room was there then near the south corner entrance to the house. I think a piazza is there now, covering an immense door rock that I well remember. My grandfather was a farmer, and never ran the tavern. He owned lots of land on the back road;- the old ball ground and meadow opposite, and running up back of Hammond's, now owned by Mr. Frank D. Somers, and down the back road nearly to Rose and Polly Coburn's, and nearly to Maj. Blunt's, including a house near the woods.

LEMON FAMILY

The house I mentioned was given to my uncle Charles Warren Holt who married Charlott Abbott, daughter of Enoch Abbott, whose daughter is now in Lawrence.

When my grandfather Holt died he left the old place to grandmother, and uncle Warren never owned it. My grandmother sold it, 1866, to Mrs. James Stevens of Claremont, N.H., whose husband was a brother of Paron Stevens of New York and Boston hotel fame. James and Paron Stevens built, ran and owned the Revere House, Tremont House and the Astor House in New York.

Mrs. Stevens married a Theological student; he turned Episcopalian and they- the Ainsworths- went to Pittsburg, Pa. I met them once since in Buffalo, N.Y. fifteen years ago.

As I said, grandfather Holt was a farmer, and my father and mother lived on the old place for years, when my father ran a book bindery in Andover for a while, and also had a bindery in Cambridge. He came home from Cambridge every Saturday. You spoke of my father having a book bindery job- he never worked for anyone but my uncle Frank. My grandfather Holt set Uncle Warren and my father up in business in Andover and my father continued the business in Cambridge until 1880 and died in Malden aged 76 years, five months.

We were all born in that house but my brother Horace Holt Lemon. He was born in a place owned by my grandfather Lemon at the part of Andover called Scotland District, a story and a half house on the corner of Main street for years owned by an Abbot, and near the old Scotland District school.

I always wanted to own the old Blunt Farm and wanted to buy it of the Berry family before I bought this old Inn. We lived there with my grandmother all during the War and we still have some of the nice old furniture that my grandfather had there.

My grandmother came to live with us at Cambridge after she sold the old place to Mrs. Stevens, but died at Uncle Charles Wardwell's near Charles Blunt's at the fork of Salem St. near Daniel Cummings.

My uncle Horace was elected Capt. of the Andover Company on his return from crossing the plains from California, after going around Cape Horn to California. He had seen rough life on the plains in Indian fighting, and thus made a good soldier.

I remember well the stirring incidents that surround our old place during and after the War. Uncle Horace was promoted to Major and our place was the center for a lot of War news.

Major Holt was brought home wounded and thought to be dying, and laid in the old south room- formerly the bar room- for many months. On his recovery he returned to the front. He was one of the chief marshalls at Lincoln's funeral at Springfield, Ill., being picked as an exceptionally fine looking officer, and six feet in his stockings.

My father and mother were married in the parlor of that house by the Rev. Otis A. Skinner, Universalist minister. Grandfather Holt was one of the promoters of the Universalist Church, corner of Purchase Ave., - long since gone. His sister used to plead with him to give up that wicked belief.

Uncle Horace died in Nevada.

Uncle Stevens Holt who died at Saratoga and is now buried in Andover, had a son, Harrison Holt, who, from a fine record in the volunteer Service was appointed a First Lieut. in the Regular Army and is buried in Harmony Grove, Salem.

I have about fifty or 75 lantern slides and a lecture on the Wayside Inn and I should like to give it in Andover in a proper hall, for the benefit of the Historical Society, if they would like the idea.

All my brothers are gone now and Ella and I are all that remain. We think a lot of dear Edith and should like her to come and visit us every year, but somehow can't get her to come.

If there are any more questions that I can answer, I shall be pleased to do so.

Yours truly

Edward R. Lemon

Mr. Gilman, who married Mary, the daughter of Ephraim Kendall, Jr., bought the place from Tom Kendall. Mr. Livingston went there after Wright left, the latter having hired it from Asa's brother, Porter Livingston.

Asa W. married first, Elizabeth, daughter of Edmund French of Tewksbury, who died in 1866 where he now resides. He married 2nd., Roxa Swan, daughter of John and Martha (Swan) Howell, who was born in German, Me., May 7, 1837. The children are:-

LOCKE FAMILY

old JAMES LOCKE was apparently once a resident of Salisbury, and was born 1763; had two wives; called inn-keeper, at his death in Andover, April 20, 1845, age 82 or 3; buried in South Ward.
( Was he a sea capt. also?) His sons appear to be :-

David Locke, son of James and first wife, born in Salisbury, died at sea, 1811; stone in South Ward.

Hiram M. Locke, b. b. 1800 ; son of 1st w.; died at sea, 1811.
Capt. James Odine Locke , b. in Salisbury 1796; d. 1840 in Boston; stone in South Ward.

---
( Sally Locke, wife of Capt. James Locke ( 2nd wife of old James ) died of a cancer, 1835, at 63; born 1772.)

---
Mary Odine Locke, daughter of James and Sally, born ---- ; m.
1823, John Millett of Boston.

George Locke, maybe a son of Capt. James , Jr., married
Sabra Kimball of N.H., 1845; child died of thrush, Apr. 1, 1846.

Mary Odione Locke, daughter of Capt. James, Jr., and neice to Mary Odione, -who m. Jn. Millett, - married W. F. Capewell of Boston, 1839. This young girl was an intimate friend of Hannah Abbott, and the girls of the town flocked to the tavern to help her, on occasions when the Seminary anniversary was on, and Mrs. Russell, the famous cook. presided. She was before her marriage, to John Russell, Diana Boag, of Marblehead.

Old James, called a widower at his death, died of indigestion .
His first wife was probably Odione.

LOCKE FAMILY

Possibly Asa Lamson came to ANDOVER to help old James Locke in the tavern, and was called upon to take charge of Mansion House after the widow of Phillips left it. She sold, I think, to the trustees. I see no earlier mention, as yet, of the tavern being so used.

The trustees took over the Mansion House before Madame P.F. Phillips died, and she went to live with Squire Farrar and died there 1812, so it was a tavern very likely after 1802, when her husband died.

Asa Lamson and his wife Sarah Locke, had a daughter born here, 1846. He was called a boarding-house keeper. Mrs. Scudder said her mother was a Locke, and Aunt Locke lived in the Squire Hazen House in her day. I think Hazen bought it from the Locke family.

Aunt Hannah recalls Mary Odione going to Boston to buy finery and buying cloth and a pattern for the first pair of drawers worn by an Andover girl. Aunt Grey borrowed the pattern and cut out and wore two pairs.

Ballard Holt recalls Mr. Lamson well. he used to carry butter there. He thought that the aged Mrs. Allen Hinton was one of the servants at the Mansion House in Lamson's day and was retained by Bodwell and married Allen Hinton, the refugee who came from the South with Sam Tucker, when he returned from War. She was a good deal the older, but outlived Allen and is still alive in 1913, and has two children. I think Harry Bodwell came there next.

April 2, 1853:-The Mansion House is too small to accomodate transients and a hotel is needed at the center. Many Hill families are obliged to take roomers to help out : the Hotel.

" Samuel Locke Lamson, son of the once proprietor of the old Mansion House on the Hill, died recently, ( Oct.1910 ) at Keene, N.H. age 76.

Lived at Pigeon Cove, Mass. Unmarried. Lived with mother until her death. Buried beside parents in New Boston, N.H.

LOCKE FAMILY

Jan. 29, 1807 :- " Annie Louise Locke died last Monday after a long illness, at 61 years of age. She was born in Melrose , and coming to Andover as a child spent the rest of her life here. In the public schools of the town she was educated, and then as a teacher, took up her life work in the community, where she left a helpful impress on the lives of many men and women who had the good fortune to come into her ken.....

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Frederic Palmer at the family home, Elm Street. Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery.

LONG FAMILY

of ANDOVER

1897.

(Clemons)

"At the age of 84 years, Mrs. Elizabeth Long died Monday at the home off Salem Street. Deceased was the widow of the late Elijah Long, a life-long resident. Although through misfortune, a victim of extreme poverty, she was imbued with a resolute and independant spirit, which led her to eke out a miserable existence in the squalor of what had been for so many years a home to her, rather than accept that charity accorded to a town charge. ...

Two daughters and two sons survive. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon. Elijah Long was b. here, Mar. 29, 1807; his father, Elijah, born here, Nov. 15, 1777.

"About 8.20 o'clock Monday evening, the humble dwelling, the domicile of the Long family was razed by some unknown cause, the house at the time being unoccupied. Within the past two months the habitation has been the scene of two funerals, the aged mother who absolutely refused to become a Town charge, and the eldest daughter, who though racked by disease preferred death, rather than endure, what to these unfortunates appeared, the horror of the poor farm.

For years the family living had been made by the two daughters, Emma and Eliza, who sold eggs, berries or other small fruits in their season or worked for money or eatables. A few months ago, at the death of Emma, Eliza was taken to the Farm. A brother, Frank, preferred to roam the woods and remain at the old haunt, which though reported to be foul and unkempt, was to them a home.

The building they occupied was formerly a little red school-house in the town of Boxford and came into the service of the family after long use in the neighboring town. Its present site, on Saelm Street on the old lane was formerly land owned by Peter Holt, one of the most venerable residents. The Center hand engine had a run of two miles, to no avail."

THE LORING FAMILY

JOHN (1) LORING, was, by tradition, impressed aboard a French man-of-war within a half mile of his birthplace in England, when he was 18 years old. He was the son of David Loring. This was in 1758.

... It is said that the other men of the crew advised the youth that he would be treated well if he submitted to orders and that when he reached port he would have a chance to escape. How he achieved his freedom I do not know, but he first appeared in this country in Pelham, N.H. The family is said to be of Scotch-Irish origin, of Tyrone. John married <sup>May 29, 1769/</sup> Sarah Foster, in Pelham; <sup>in Litchfield, Hillsboro</sup> he enlisted on July 11, 1775 as private under Capt. John Parks in Col. Mary Ann (3) Loring, who married Robert Callahan, writes an instructive letter on the trip to the West of her father, Tom (2) Loring, with his wife Sally(Russell) and his little brood about 1818. From C.H.A.:-

The family stayed in New York awhile while Tom got in with the Steamboat people and had a chance to go to Natchez, Miss. He started off with his family in a covered wagon-John (3) being a babe in arms.

After they got over the mountains they went down the Alleghany River in a flat boat- a large double-decked affair- a deck at each end and a space between- operated by the current. Two families could squat comfortably-one at each end- under awnings. On these boats were four fire-places where they cooked hoe-cake, corn bread, hasty pudding and fish. Potatoes were plentiful and common, but Mary Ann says she never saw a cracker until she was grown and came back East.

When they reached Cincinnati the Ohio River froze, as they had started late. The boat could go no farther until the river was free again, so Mr. Long started out to see what he could do. He found a straggling village beyond a hill, and there discovered an empty house. Its owner said that he was awfully lonesome and if Tom would stay they might have the place rent free for 3 months.

They could get no furniture, so mother Sally, who was a good contriver, covered barrel chairs and they made furniture out of odds and ends until Tom got a start. Sally and Mary Ann remembered eating their meals kneeling in front of an overturned tub.

Tom hired a patch of land from the Shakers who had a farm back in the hills, and he raised broom corn and learned to make brooms. On his trips down the Mississippi later he sold his own brooms and those made by the Shakers. On these trips he took young Tom, and junior learned to make saddle-trees which were in good demand as everybody at that time rode horseback.

Tom(2) put the machinery in the first Ohio River steamboat.

Sally discovered a half barrel of flour in the attic of their new house and the owner gave it to her. From this she made a fine quantity of starch, and young Tom and Sally peddled it about. When the barrel was empty it became another chair. The owner of two large brick houses where officials needed laundry work done, availed ~~himself~~ himself of Mrs. Loring's skill, and one way and another, the family got along, pioneer-fashion.

Their relative, grandpa Russell, promised to set them up in Andover if they would come back again and sent money for their return. They sold everything they would not need and started for Buffalo, coming back with their own wagon and a prairie schooner, in which they lived until they got to the canal boat, on Lake Erie.

When they first returned, young Tom went to Boston for a time and stayed with Eben Lovejoy, whose mother Phebe (Russell) was Tom's aunt. Lovejoy had a store there but Tom did not fancy the life of a clerk. He liked his trade, but there was no demand here for saddle-trees. Besides, he had left a young lady, Hannah Smith, out near the Ohio, and he longed to go back. The Boston girls of the day were a mere bag of bones to Tom, whose taste ran to Western models, so he went back. Hannah, in the meantime, had been annexed by a rival- but Keziah Murray took her place in his heart.

Once when Mrs. Callahan went West she rode with an old stage driver whose name was Loring. On inquiry she learned that he was her UNCLE WILLIAM. He was pleased to hear all about her family and asked her to stay over and visit at his home, which she was unable to do at the time.

Her son came East later - and said that his mother and her uncle's family had corresponded, and that uncle Bill's wife was very disappointed at her failure to meet Mrs. Callahan.

Another LORING family represented here in Andover, descends from Thomas (1) Loring who came from Axminster, England, in 1635 and went first to Hingham. He married Jane Newton in England. She d. in Hull, Aug. 25, 1672. Thomas also died in Hull, on April 1, 1661. They had:-
